

Pet FRIENDLY STORES

Nordstrom/Nordstrom Rack

Oh, yeah! You read it here first. Considered “Mecca” to those who love to shop, both Nordstrom and its off-price cousin, Nordstrom Rack, allow pets.

The Apple Store

Shopping for a new phone or been putting off getting that cracked iPhone screen fixed? Well, strap on Fido’s leash and head to your nearest Apple Store. Rumor has it that the folks at the Genius Bar really enjoy meeting new pups!

The Home Depot

Weekends are for home improvement, but they’re also for spending some quality time with your pets. Did you know that you can combine your weekend efforts and take your dog with you to pick up home improvement goods at Home Depot?

Lowe’s Home Improvement

Yup...just like Home Depot, Lowe’s allows well mannered pets in their stores. Just keep Rover from hiking a leg in the lumber department and you’ll be all good.

Michaels

Feeling crafty? You can treat your pooch to a visit to Michaels to create the crafts of your dreams.

Hobby Lobby

Ack! Home decor is 40% off at Hobby Lobby! Get there quick before all of the “Live, Laugh, Love” signs sell out! And, don’t worry about leaving your pooch at home—she can come along too. Leashed dogs are welcome in all Hobby Lobby stores.

Pottery Barn

Perhaps one of the most surprising stores on the list, but alas, true—Pottery Barn, the super stylish home decor store welcomes everything from purse pups to leashed giant breeds in their stores. You might want to exercise caution when allowing Rover to “test drive” a nice sofa at Pottery Barn, though.

Barnes & Noble

Itching for a new read? Grab your pup and head to Barnes & Noble to grab that book you’ve been looking forward to reading. While you’re there, grab an animal intelligence book and decide that you definitely have the smartest dog on the planet.

TJ Maxx/Marshalls/Home Goods

If you love a good bargain and, much like your pooch, also love to dig for treasures, then you’re certain to be a fan of TJ Maxx and its relative, Marshalls/Home Goods, but I’ll bet you didn’t know that they allow pets, too! (In fact, I once saw a lady with a cockatoo on her shoulder shopping in TJ Maxx—true story!)

Ross (Dress For Less)

Another bargain shopper’s paradise, Ross Dress For Less allows pooches in their retail locations.
